Mr. Bradley Herndon grew up in western Ransom, Kansas. Mr. Herndon went to multiple colleges before he got his teaching degree at Fort Hays State University. The Herndon family became residents of Sand Point, Alaska in July of 2014. Some features of Sand Point that Mr. Herndon enjoys are the small island life and the many activities the town allows. Although Mr. Herndon did not have a tough time adjusting to the island, his family did. Mr. Herndon became a music teacher because of his father. "My father was a music teacher, and watching him teach inspired me to be a music teacher as well. However, he strongly encouraged me not to be a music teacher." When asked how Mr. Herndon felt about being the boys basketball coach, he answered with, "a small town is difficult to coach, but I enjoy coaching so far. With the tournament coming up, we are in better condition after every game. With the three weeks between our first game and the ones now, we are in a much healthier, better place."
